Arrears Of $100,000 Collected In 4 Years

Citizens Asked To Turn Out To Nomination Meeting Friday

This review of the year's municipal business is made by Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd.

I give all the citizens a call to attend nomination meeting on Friday night. It's your business, so if you don't come out and look after it, you will have no right to find fault with what will be done in your absence.

The annual statement has been well prepared and appears in both town papers.

A copy may also be had at the nomination meeting or from the clerk's office.

For the benefit of those citizens who cannot be present at the nomination meeting, I will make the following comments on the year's business as conducted by your council.

I will say that all members of the council attended faithfully and we have had a good year.

Lower Tax Rate
The annual reduction of the tax rate during the past five years has been accomplished without curtailing services and many permanent improvements have been made and paid for.

I want to particularly mention the extensive repairs to our pavements on Lot St. (Millard Ave.) and Lorne Ave. as well as many patches of resurfacing.

Two facts stand out: let our pavements, if carefully patched from time to time, will last almost permanently.

Second, instead of creating a debt to fix the pavement, by careful economy and good management we will be able to pay it off, part this year and the balance next.

Water Supply
Since the Strigley St. well was completed we have had an abundant supply of water. It is healthy water to use, but at times has a disagreeable odor due to a mineral gas and there is also an excess of iron, part of which is

TURKEYS ARE WON

Winners of the poultry at the firemen's dance and euchre last Friday were: (in order): Lawrence Racine, turkey; Murray Jelley, turkey; Mrs. Bertram A. Smith, turkey; Leonard Rolland, goose; T. H. Pritchard, pair of chickens; R. B. Smith, pair of chickens.

Euchre winners were: ladies, Mrs. Ross Evans, Mrs. Buckley; men, Mr. Victor, Ted Fraser.

picked up from the system. I think the iron remover will work better when we use an inexpensive attachment which gradually coats the system on the inside and prevents the water picking up additional iron.

The council made a complete survey of other sources of water supply. We found out we can get water from springs, five or six miles east at a cost of $40,000 or $50,000 for piping, etc. We can get water to the north. It is good to know that if and when we need a greater supply of water we can get it.

Arrears of Taxes

During the past four years, without using undue pressure, we have collected a wonderful lot of money. Note the following summary:

Year	Arrears Collected	Penalties
1934	$35,714.24	$4,820.08
1935	25,277.00	3,205.05
1936	24,280.41	3,004.48
1937	24,088.06	*3,500.68

In six months.

Up until now I have advised against a tax sale for two reasons: First, many citizens have become more prosperous and paid their arrears. In the second place, real estate was unsaleable, excepting at a tremendous sacrifice. During 1938 a tax sale will have to be held to clean up the balance of arrears.

All members of the council have co-operated and worked hard, with the result that the town of Newmarket has had a very successful year.

STATES EXAMS ARE NOT ALL THAT MATTERS

W. L. Kidd Is Recipient Of Address From High School Board

"The banner night of the school year," in the words of Principal J. B. Bastedo, took place at the high school last Friday.

Commencement was a one-night affair this year, as there were no athletic awards.

"While we do not need to apologize for examination results, there are a great many things that do not show in credits, firsts, seconds, and thirds," said Mr. Bastedo in his opening remarks. "We are trying to develop a spirit of fellowship and co-operation that will last in the years to come. We are trying to develop an interest in things worth-while."

"One indication of progress this year is an increased interest in reading. Students are reporting at 8:45 and 12:45 to read in the library. My contention is that a school that is reading is doing something worth-while."

"There have been a great many changes in the curriculum in the last 18 months. Only time will tell their value. Just because certain subjects have served two or three generations, it does not mean that they are the only subjects."

Many parents were present to see the graduating students of last year receive honors. The visitors admired the beautiful re-decorated assembly hall.

The students of the middle school were 86 per cent successful and the students of the upper school were 82 per cent successful last year, George D. Wark, chairman of the board, who presided over the exercises, told the gathering. Mr. Wark expressed appreciation of the work of the principal and staff.

Mr. Bastedo expressed thanks to Roadhouse & Rose for the use of furniture for the plays.

An excellent program included two lovely selections by the girls' glee club under the direction of I. Harris, breath-taking pyramids under the direction of Harry Westbrook, two extremely well presented one-act plays, and a captivating and well-executed clog dance by junior girls under Miss Stewart.

W. L. Kidd, former member of the staff, presented the prizes. He particularly praised the showing of Alice Fairbairn, winner of the Cody and Carter scholarships at the University of Toronto, and May Compland, who was third for the Carter scholarship in spite of considerable illness during the school year.

"I would like to pay my tribute to the school board for the support they have given the school during the years I have been here," said Mr. Kidd. "To appreciate our board, we have only to see school boards in other centres starving their schools and alighting their teachers."

On behalf of the school board Allan Mills, secretary, presented an address to Mr. Kidd.

Names of the prize-winners were given last week. Others taking part in the program included: Pyramids: Bill Jelley, Arthur Cook, William English, Gordon Hunt, Geale Hewson, Victor Higginson, Jack Luesby, Kenneth Johns, Dan Mahoney, Norman Legge.

Clog dance: Alice Hall, Jean Robertson, Erma Young, Marjorie Smith, Mary Davis, Gloria Peppatt, Anne Rogers, June Hill, Joan Pearce, Constance Cooke, Margaret Watson, Alice Landry, Barbara Davis (plano), Lorraine Pearce, Joan Howlett.

Warden, Two Commissioners Prove To Be All Same Age

County Councils Still Use- ful, Warden W. E. MacDonald States

"It is important in the widening of the human conscience, in the widening of government responsibility toward all, that we must not forget the individual, and the individual's duties toward the state," said Hon. Eric Cross, youthful minister of public welfare and municipal affairs in the Hepburn government, at a banquet in honor of the retiring warden of York county, Wm. E. MacDonald, New Toronto.

Stating that it was not possible for Canada to resist cultural influences from the United States, he asked that Canadians work out a "distinctive, national culture."

Among those who spoke briefly were W. P. Mulock, M. P., and Morgan Baker, M.L.A., for North York.

Mr. MacDonald made a spirited defence of county councils. The county councillors were doing no less work than formerly, but they were doing it in one-quarter of the time.

Reeve J. A. Knowles of Aurora presented an illuminated address to Mr. MacDonald.

"The duties of the warden of this county council, being the fourth largest legislative body in Canada, are not light," said Mr. Knowles. "We have 275,000 citizens. It has been said that the county took a leaf out of the provincial government's book in balancing its budget. I would point out that the county has balanced its budget for four years past."

Reeve Earl Bales of North York township said that Mr. MacDonald, the warden, Mr. Knowles and himself, the two commissioners, were all born in November of the same year. Mr. MacDonald, he said, was the youngest warden in recent years.

SEE UNUSUAL PICTURES
Last Monday evening Mr. Hancock of Toronto presented a travelogue, combined with special photographs of the coronation, to an appreciative audience in St. Paul's parish hall. The coronation pictures were unusual and unique—pictures that did not appear in magazines or in daily papers, giving authentic photographs of little incidents before unnoticed.

They were greatly enjoyed by all there, as was evinced by the hearty singing of the National Anthem, when a colored picture of the king was thrown on the screen, followed by one of the royal family.

The travelogue started with a trip up the Clyde River, and after several reels ended with a particularly pleasing one of China Havana and Cuba.

The Women's Auxiliary are very grateful to Mr. Hancock and to Miss Kathleen Wilson and to Mr. Patstone who each rendered two splendid selections, accompanied by Mrs. S. J. Marwood at the piano.

BARRELS AND BARRELS ARE SANTA'S NEED

Your Help And Co-operation Needed Saturday By Santa Claus

Santa Claus needs barrels of coppers to carry on his good work in Newmarket this Christmas.

There are many families in this town in need of your help. There are children who lack warm clothing, who don't know the joy of putting on a new sweater or a new pair of mittens, children who lack proper nourishment, children for whom Christmas without your help will be a dreary event.

The least that can be done for them is to see that they have a bright and cheery Christmas, a day to forget wants and needs.

Cold homes where under-clothed, undernourished children play hard to keep warm need your help. There is no poverty in this town? Half the world doesn't know how the other half lives. There are conditions in this town that the average citizen could not believe without actually visiting these homes, particularly at meal-time.

If you can't give a dollar or five dollars, you can give a quarter or a few coppers to help the Lions help the kiddies. The barrels will be out on Saturday.

Send your gifts to this newspaper; H. E. Lambert, Bank of Toronto; P. J. Tod, Bank of Montreal; or to any member of the Lions club.

Stores Begin To Dress Up For Xmas Season

Stores Smarten Up For Season Of Shopping And Festivity

It is Christmas shopping time in Newmarket stores.

The shelves and counters are laden with gifts. Some stores have already put in their Christmas decorations and the rest are not far behind in plans to give Santa Claus a royal welcome.

Christmas shopping has begun earlier than usual, according to the merchants. People are making up their gift lists, and are visiting the stores to ask about the things they have in mind. Others are looking for suggestions. Some have been making purchases and no doubt hiding their parcels away in out-of-the-way cupboards.

It seems to be Christmas time down Newmarket's Main St. Values are as good as, and often better than, those offered after long and expensive trips to larger centres.

Brilliant Pianist Now Lives In Town Is Convalescing

Isha Goodman Delights Lions Club With Piano Numbers

Brilliantly led by Isha Goodman, formerly of Toronto, piano virtuoso, a program of music, song and dance was enjoyed by the Lions club on Monday evening. The program was arranged by Wm. White.

Mr. Goodman, who has played as a guest artist with the Chicago and Philadelphia symphony orchestras, suffered a nervous breakdown recently and has come to Newmarket to live with his brother, Harry Goodman, auto wrecker. Mr. Goodman studied in Europe three years. He and his brother were born in Toronto and brought up there.

Mr. Goodman is considered an outstanding interpreter of Liszt, the Hungarian composer, and is also an able orchestra conductor. A high-light of the program was the singing of "Scotty" Clifford, whose rich baritone voice delighted his hearers. Little Master Pete White, son of Wm. White, gave some pleasing harmonica selections for his first public appearance.

Misses Norma and Margaret Morrison of Toronto were seen, heard and enjoyed in song and dance.

Five dental cases and one tonsil case had been looked after since the previous meeting, Jack Luck, second vice-president, reported.

Montreal Preacher Invited To Become Trinity Pastor

New Minister May Come To Newmarket After New Year

Following a meeting of the official board of Trinity United church on Monday evening, Rev. R. R. McMath of St. Paul's United church, Montreal, was invited to become pastor. There has been no pastor since the death of Rev. J. H. Wells.

Mr. McMath preached here recently. If Mr. McMath accepts the call, and the presbytery and conference concerned give their approval, his pastorate may begin early in the new year.

Mr. McMath was born in Ireland, and is a graduate of United Theological College, Montreal. He is a married man without children. He was formerly pastor of Mount Royal United church, Montreal.

Mr. McMath's name was recommended by a pulp committee headed by W. R. Stephens and the recommendation was unanimously accepted.

A GROWING TOWN

Newmarket is a growing town. According to the assessor's figures, the town's population is over 4,000. Eighty years ago, when Newmarket was incorporated as a village, the population was 1,150. In other words, our numbers have increased fourfold since that time. To put it still another way, our population has been doubled for each of two 40-year periods. It would seem reasonable, therefore, to expect our population to be over 8,000 in 1977. A long time hence? Why no, the boys and girls of Newmarket high school who officially "commenced" their careers on Friday evening will still be in harness and the rest of us will be honored patriarchs and old-age pensioners.

A Progressive Town

It is a great thing to live in or near a growing town. Youth may be going to the bow-wows, the nations may be preparing for war, civilization may be hovering near the brink of a precipice, and yet you still feel, when you live in a growing town, that there is such a thing as progress. Some may say that there is no particular progress in the increase of numbers. We are under the impression, however, that the boys and girls who "commenced" on Friday evening are better equipped for life than were boys and girls of the same age 20 years ago. Sending out into the business, industrial and social life of our town boys and girls of their calibre does mean progress and progress of a high order.

NO ACCLAMATIONS WANTED

Does lack of interest in an election indicate lack of appreciation of the efforts of those in office? Some of the town councillors raised this question at the last council meeting. In fact, there is so much fighting spirit in some of those town councillors that they don't want acclamations. They want a vote which would indicate to them clearly whether the public approves of them or not. But the town clerk advanced the opinion that lack of opposition indicated that the public is pretty well pleased. Or if it isn't altogether pleased (taste of water, tax rate, etc.) it doesn't think it could do much better itself.

Why There Are Elections

Generally speaking, elections result where there are emoluments of office or considerable honor and prestige connected with the offices to be filled, or where there is an issue over some difference of opinion or dissatisfaction with those in office. Newmarket councillors do not receive salaries, but their offices are important and councillors are honored above the average citizen. At least, they are quoted in the public press more often than the average citizen and they are honored or not according to whether the things they say appeal to the public as sound and sensible.

Elections Are Cheap

While it is rather a compliment to the members of the present council that they are not likely to have to work hard to retain their seats, it would be better if there were an election, if accompanied by two or three public meetings to discuss the town's affairs. It would cost a little, but not as much as it costs when citizens are not acquainted with the details and problems of their municipal business. In the absence of elections and public meetings, The Era endeavors to do its bit to keep the public informed of what goes on in the council chamber, letting you know even when a pin drops from the council table.

AS GOOD AS THEIR BOND

There is a demand for the bonding of lawyers and others handling trust funds. Lawyers themselves generally favor bonding, although it is said that the cost would be prohibitive. We will go further and say, not only should lawyers be bonded but their words should be as good as their bonds. A young Toronto lawyer in the local police court last week fell down in this respect. One of his words was "done" for "did" and he pronounced "said" as "sayed." He didn't have much to say, but a few sentences betrayed him twice.

POST-ADULT EDUCATION

The other day we heard of a prominent Toronto business man who had been retired at, we believe, 65 years of age. How was he enjoying it, he was asked. "Awful," he replied. "My work has been my whole life. I have put everything into it. Now I have no interests." More attention than ever before is being paid today to the first 20 years of life. School curricula are being "re-vamped," and there is even a committee of the National Employment Commission studying the problems of youth. But what consideration is being given to the last 20 years of life? As the result of depression, invention and social agitation men are being put out of work, retired and pensioned at 60 and 65 years of age. How are they to employ their time?

A School For Oldsters

It goes without saying that it would have been better for them if they had interested themselves in gardening, nature, chess, checkers, reading, lawn bowling or the "roaring game" of curling when they were younger, but if they didn't do so, what are they to do now? There is nothing worse can happen a man than to have nothing to do. We fancy that there will have to be schools of preparation for retirement. When men reach the retiring age, they will have to go to school to learn how to spend their leisure. They will receive instruction in playing games, and in hobbies such as stamp collecting, fret-work, metal work, and an effort will be made to interest them in reading something besides newspapers. Of course, if these schools are not founded in the next couple of generations they will not be needed, for the so-called new education aims to prepare boys and girls not only for work but also for leisure.

A CHRISTMAS RESOLUTION

Now is the time for all good citizens to make one of their new year resolutions. That resolution should be: "This Christmas I will save time and money by buying as far as possible at home; I will not be lured away to save a penny on one article and lose half a dozen on another and my transportation besides when I can buy the same article here in town; I will also remember that my time is worth money too, and that when I take half a day or a day to purchase what I could secure in half an hour, I am really losing, not saving, money." The loyal citizen will also remember that when he leaves the profit on his purchase in town, he is helping to make his own tax burden lighter, he is helping to make other community burdens lighter, he is helping the people who help him. It is not long until the Christmas shopping begins. Of course, there will be a lot of Christmas shopping done out of town, but we think shopping in town will give you greater savings, more satisfaction and a happier Christmas.

A BREWER'S BRAINSTORM

We like to give credit for ingenuity where credit is due, even if we must give credit to His Satanic Majesty. In fact, it seems as though that royal personage is just a little more ingenious than the average person. It seems that a brewer has had a brain wave. He is concealing poker hands under the labels on his beer bottles. The boys or girls drop in, buy a couple of bottles, and tear off the labels to see who pays. You have to know your poker hands, of course. This brewer, of course, isn't all bad. He is injuring people by inducing them to use more of his product, but at the same time, he is giving a little better value. It costs him something to put that poker hand under the label.

CHORLEY PARK

What about Government House? Does the pomp and grandeur serve a useful purpose? Is the expenditure justified? Do we need a representative of the king in Ontario, and if we do, must we house him palatially? Mr. Hepburn has a definite answer for the last question, but we do not believe he has ventured an opinion on the question whether or not the lieutenant-governor is a necessary officer. The chief function of the lieutenant-governor is to sign bills which have passed the legislature three times. The lieutenant-governor, it is generally considered, has no choice in this matter although the lieutenant-governor of Alberta recently reserved a bill for the consideration of the federal government. The most important function of the lieutenant-governor, we would say, is to summon a new prime minister after another has resigned. The most useful function of a lieutenant-governor, we would add, is to use his high office, as Dr. H. A. Bruce has done, to bring to attention matters that should be of public concern and that have not become tangled up in party politics. Our comment on this side of the office would be, first, that few lieutenant-governors bother to serve the public in this way, and, second, that even fewer would have the tact which has enabled Dr. Bruce to carry on his housing campaign without getting himself tangled up in politics.

Two Economies

If for any reason there is no lieutenant-governor for a period, the chief justice of the province performs his duties. His duties are so light that it has frequently been suggested that the chief justice should perform these duties all the time. If the province is no longer to maintain government house, as a matter of economy, we might go farther and hand over the governor's duties to the chief justice. It is not improbable that Mr. Hepburn would like to do this also, and when constitutional changes are made, provision might be made to permit a province, at its own option, to dispense with the office of lieutenant-governor.

"Chorley" Not

Even though the professed object of closing government house is economy, we do hope that it is not allowed to go to ruin. We agree with Mr. Hepburn that it is not serving a very useful purpose at the present time. But we would not be loath to see the same money spent to convert the building into a library, a museum, a hospital, or a home for tired politicians (what a bunch of them there would be). It is not nice to read that the New Brunswick government house, also said to be a million dollar structure (which we doubt very much), abandoned in 1889 in favor of the lieutenant-governors' private residences, has become a windowless castle.

CHRISTMAS DUPLICATION

An effort is being made this year (Jack Luck of the Lions Club is very interested) to avoid duplications and disappointments in seeing that needy Newmarket families enjoy the Christmas festivities. In the city of Toronto there is an organization called the "social index," operated as a unit of the Federation for Community Service. All charitable organizations report to this office the work they are doing, and when an organization is asked to help a family or individual it is possible to find out what other organization has helped or is helping the family or individual in question. In addition, at Christmas time the Neighborhood Workers' Association operates a special Christmas index known as the "Christmas Exchange." All organizations are asked to report the work they are doing to the Christmas Exchange.

Christmas Exchange

For instance, the Star Santa Claus Fund helps over 20,000 children, representing probably over 6,000 families. This means making out 6,000 cards. Each of these cards is sent to the Christmas Exchange for checking and listing. If some other organization is looking after the children (12 and under), the family is left off the newspaper fund list. Incidentally, the circumstances of each of these 6,000 families, if not already known, are carefully investigated by the Neighborhood Workers' Association before being approved. Of course, even in the city a lot of church organizations and private individuals help out families at Christmas time without consulting the Christmas Exchange, and there is often duplication. Duplication, however, is not such a sad thing as missing some needy families entirely. Private individuals and church organizations in the city often send Christmas dinners to families who are being already looked after, while the Christmas Exchange could provide the names of families for whom no one is caring. This Christmas Exchange in Toronto needs to be advertised. The Christmas Exchange in Newmarket needs to be organized.

"What ho, my hearties!" exclaimed Handsome, the Blue Jay, to some of the chums. "Fancy seeing you here!"

"Why 'fancy seeing you here,' said Chips. "You're the one who'll be going—not us. It's quite normal for us to be here."

"I'm surprised that the cold weather hasn't driven you away," added Chubby Nuthatch.

"Oh, no," laughed Handsome. "This is nothing. I'll brighten the drab lives of you folks for a while yet, I expect."

"Drab lives, my eye," returned Pecker. "Our lives are eventful enough to suit anyone. We have comedy, tragedy, excitement, danger, romance . . ."

"O.K. Pecker, but you don't know what's going on the way we Blue Jays do," Handsome said. "I'm thinking of starting a news service for the folks in this district and then you really will hear about all the drama of life among the birds."

"Why, how in the world could you ever do that?" asked Chips. "Besides, how would you ever get the news?"

"Oh, that's no problem at all," said Handsome. "I hear and see a lot of things, roaming around the country as I do. I would just spend more of my time finding out what was happening around the town and then I would circulate the news."

"You always were one of the most inquisitive people I know," said Mrs. Pecker drily. "You'll enjoy yourself, I'm sure."

"How in the world will you circulate the news?" asked Chubby. "I'll simply store it up in my mind in a neat orderly way and whenever I see a group of birds together I'll go over to them and give them the news," he explained.

"That would be quite a public service, if you did that," said Chips. "I could almost admire you, Handsome, if you kept us informed of the interesting doings of the birds, out of the goodness of your heart like that."

"Tut, tut!" Handsome sputtered. "You're all wrong if you think I'm going to do this for nothing. I'm going to have a regular charge for it."

"You're going to charge for it?" gasped Pecker. "How on earth will you do that?"

"Easily," stated Handsome. "I'll simply demand payment in the form of information about good eating places. Each bird that listens to my news will have to tell me about a spot where I can get something nice to eat. In that way, I may be able to stay quite late this year—if business is good and I get to know about enough food to keep me going."

"Why, that's ridiculous!" said Chubby. "No one would tell you about where there were nice berries or something like that, just to hear you blather about nothing at all."

"Oh, yes they would," said Handsome calmly. "Wouldn't you want to hear what I had to say if I came along and started out something like this—'Well, friends, I can tell you about a rather dangerous enemy of some of you folks today, that is if you've got your fees ready. Otherwise I'm in rather a rush to get over to the other side of the town.'"

"Well, perhaps I might," admitted Chubby. "But I wouldn't trust you not to make up a tale about some Northern Shrike having just arrived in town or something else equally unpleasant."

"Why, I wouldn't dream of garbling the news," stoutly maintained Handsome. "I'm the soul of honor. And just to show you how much in earnest I am, I'll give you a piece of news free, about one of your own friends."

"What is that?" asked Mrs. Pecker.

"Your little friend, Willie, the Winter Wren, is here," announced Handsome majestically. "Why, surely not," said Chips. "I've been looking everywhere for him and haven't seen him anywhere."

"Well, he's here, because I saw him," said Handsome. "He was just darting into some underbrush when I saw him. And he's so shy that not many people have seen him yet, although he's been here for several days, according to my cousin Shrike."

"That's certainly news to me," admitted Chips. "I guess you do find out the occasional thing worth reporting, Handsome, old boy. Where did you say you found Willie?"

"Over on the edge of the woods across there," said Handsome. "Well, I guess I must be off to get some more news. The more I think about my brilliant idea, the better I like it."

"Jays always have had a reputation for terrible curiosity," said Mrs. Pecker as Handsome's blue feathers grew fainter in the distance, as he winged his way across the town.

POLICE COURT CHILD BITING DOG TO BE DESTROYED

"I will not pay him until he finishes his month," said Morris Crittenden, East Gwillimbury, on a charge of not paying wages, in police court on Tuesday.

"I worked there 17½ days," said Delbert Crowder. "He thought I was driving his horses too fast. He told me to plow where he could watch me. I said it was a funny thing if I couldn't plow without being watched."

"What were you to be paid?" asked Miss B. E. Lyons for the crown.

"There was no arrangement," said Mr. Crowder.

"What are you usually paid?"

"A dollar a day when working by the day."

"I hired Delbert Crowder for $10 the one month, and after that he was to get his board and tobacco for the winter," said Mr. Crittenden.

"Why did he quit in the middle of the month?"

"He was abusing the horses," said Mr. Crittenden.

Mr. Crowder denied that he had been hired for $10 a month.

"A dollar a day is very reasonable, and is the prevailing rate in the district," said Miss Lyons, suggesting that Mr. Crittenden should be asked to pay $17.50 less $2.25 already paid for tobacco.

The magistrate adopted this suggestion.

"There is nothing so good as a strapping for a man who beats his wife," said Magistrate Bull in a domestic assault case. "Two years suspended sentence and if you are brought back, you know what that means."

Elwood Allen, East Gwillimbury, pleaded not guilty to a charge of keeping a dog that had bitten a child.

"When my two children were going to school the dog came out and bit the little girl," said Irwin Erb. "Mrs. Allen came out and looked at the child and said: 'Oh, you are not hurt! The marks were on the child when she came home from school. The dog bit the child a second time another day and drew blood.'"

"Did you go to a doctor?" asked Mr. Allen.

"No."

"Why not?"

"It wasn't bad enough."

"Why didn't you complain to me?"

"Mrs. Erb complained to Mrs. Allen."

"Wasn't it about something else?"

"And also about your children calling my children Germans."

"The dog bit Marie," Marion, her older sister, related after Marie had proved an unhelpful witness.

"The dog tore my socks," said Joseph Newell, a neighbor. "He also tore my wife's clothes another time."

"Did you complain to me?" asked Mr. Allen.

"I complained to your wife," said Mr. Newell.

Mr. Newell said the dog was a nuisance, and had bitten all but one of his six children.

"Describe the dog to the magistrate," said Mr. Allen.

"It's a little undersized, brown color," was the answer.

"That's right," said Mr. Allen.

"Big enough to give a dirty bite," Mr. Newell added.

Mrs. Erb said that she had not been bitten, but that her child had been.

"I have often been at Mr. Allen's, with my children, and we have never been bitten," said Lloyd Sedore, called as a witness by Mr. Allen.

"I have never known the dog to bite anyone," said Mr. Allen. He said that his children and the Erb children went to school together and quarrelled over other matters.

"I don't see how a dog can be a nuisance like this dog has been without the owner knowing something about it," said Magistrate L. J. C. Bull.

He ordered Mr. Allen to pay costs and to have the dog destroyed.

Howard Linstead pleaded not guilty to a charge of theft of a stove and some furniture. The articles had been traded and the dispute was over their ownership.

"I bought some furniture from Mr. Linstead two or three weeks ago," said Alfred Hill, the complainant.

"What did you buy?" asked Miss Lyons.

"A stove, a kitchen cabinet, and two or three pieces of furniture."

Mr. Cain said I could leave them in the barn. They were taken away."

"Did Mr. Linstead admit that he had taken them?"

"He said that he had reserved them at the sale."

"You were a tenant on your brother's farm?" asked J. D. Lucas, counsel for Mr. Linstead.

"Yes."

"And you owned these articles?"

"Yes."

Mr. Lucas listed a number of articles.

"You sold that stuff to Mr. Linstead?"

"Yes."

"What did you get?"

"A car."

"Do you know that that car had just been purchased for $100 by Mr. Linstead?"

"No."

"Where were you when the next deal took place?"

"On the road. His car broke down. He came to my house for a battery. He asked me what I would give him for the furniture back. He said he would like to reserve a stove in the barn with the other things."

"I gave him $20, the battery and a watch for the furniture including the stove."

"Is this the watch?"

"Yes."

"There is nothing more annoying to a person with a bush, trying to protect game birds than to have someone go there shooting," said the magistrate.

Joseph O'Brien also pleaded guilty to a charge of using firearms on Sunday.

Mr. Warrander asked that the firearms be returned. The magistrate said that they were in the possession of the department and that they would probably be returned on request.

His story of his child dying of infantile paralysis discredited by investigation, Harry Elsen, Toronto, appeared for sentence. He paid J. L. Smith, East Gwillimbury.

"Did you make restitution?" asked Mr. Matthews.

"Yes, I have the money here. I didn't know who to pay it to."

"Then you haven't made restitution. We told you whom to pay it to."

"The trouble is that one of my guarantors for a loan was not accepted," replied Elsen. "I have $15 here and I will pay the rest next week."

"Then you haven't made restitution," said the magistrate. "You have had every opportunity."

"Please give me a chance to pay the rest," said Elsen. "If I can't pay next week, you can give me the most severe penalty the court can give."

"Would you consider giving him another week?" N. L. Matthews, K. C., asked the magistrate. "We don't want the impression to get abroad that this is a collection agency, but if the man will pay I think we could give him the opportunity to do so."

The magistrate remanded him for a week on his own bail.

Wm. Lockhart was fined $10 and costs for hunting without a license. Game Warden Lyons showed the court a bullet which, he said, indicated that the accused man was looking for deer.

"On Sunday, Oct. 31, a car went 45 miles per hour on Eagle St., Constable James Bloss testified. As a result J. H. Edmonds, Toronto, was fined $12 and costs or seven days.

H. R. Smith, Toronto, 43 miles per hour on Eagle St., was fined $10 and costs or five days. Constable Bloss gave evidence.

Mr. Cain said I could leave them in the barn. They were taken away."

"Did Mr. Linstead admit that he had taken them?"

"He said that he had reserved them at the sale."

"You were a tenant on your brother's farm?" asked J. D. Lucas, counsel for Mr. Linstead.

"Yes."

"And you owned these articles?"

"Yes."

Mr. Lucas listed a number of articles.

"You sold that stuff to Mr. Linstead?"

"Yes."

"What did you get?"

"A car."

"Do you know that that car had just been purchased for $100 by Mr. Linstead?"

"No."

"Where were you when the next deal took place?"

"On the road. His car broke down. He came to my house for a battery. He asked me what I would give him for the furniture back. He said he would like to reserve a stove in the barn with the other things."

"I gave him $20, the battery and a watch for the furniture including the stove."

"Is this the watch?"

"Yes."

"There is nothing more annoying to a person with a bush, trying to protect game birds than to have someone go there shooting," said the magistrate.

Joseph O'Brien also pleaded guilty to a charge of using firearms on Sunday.

Mr. Warrander asked that the firearms be returned. The magistrate said that they were in the possession of the department and that they would probably be returned on request.

His story of his child dying of infantile paralysis discredited by investigation, Harry Elsen, Toronto, appeared for sentence. He paid J. L. Smith, East Gwillimbury.

"Did you make restitution?" asked Mr. Matthews.

"Yes, I have the money here. I didn't know who to pay it to."

"Then you haven't made restitution. We told you whom to pay it to."

"The trouble is that one of my guarantors for a loan was not accepted," replied Elsen. "I have $15 here and I will pay the rest next week."

"Then you haven't made restitution," said the magistrate. "You have had every opportunity."

"Please give me a chance to pay the rest," said Elsen. "If I can't pay next week, you can give me the most severe penalty the court can give."

"Would you consider giving him another week?" N. L. Matthews, K. C., asked the magistrate. "We don't want the impression to get abroad that this is a collection agency, but if the man will pay I think we could give him the opportunity to do so."

The magistrate remanded him for a week on his own bail.

Wm. Lockhart was fined $10 and costs for hunting without a license. Game Warden Lyons showed the court a bullet which, he said, indicated that the accused man was looking for deer.

"On Sunday, Oct. 31, a car went 45 miles per hour on Eagle St., Constable James Bloss testified. As a result J. H. Edmonds, Toronto, was fined $12 and costs or seven days.

H. R. Smith, Toronto, 43 miles per hour on Eagle St., was fined $10 and costs or five days. Constable Bloss gave evidence.

Progressive Euchre

BY GOLDEN GLOW

Just as regular as autumn comes round, so progressive euchre becomes once more popular. What is the charm, the fascination, it possesses? Is it the prizes, or is it love of the game, or is it the constant changing of partners? Whatever the secret we cannot deny that progressive euchres are popular!

When all the players are ready,
seated at the different tables, numbered one, two, three and so on, then the rules are read out, while everybody waits in breathless suspense for the bell at the head table to announce that the time to start has come.

Tension increases every minute.
In a breathless silence you hear the cards being shuffled, cut and dealt-then the play begins, and folks relax somewhat. If the rule is ten points at the head table then when that happens "ding-a-ling" goes the bell, and players laughingly wait for the one who has the "punch" to come round and punch your card or otherwise as the case may be, and you move, winners go up, losers go down.

Oh, what a mix-up! At times nobody seems to know where they are supposed to go, and such a laughing mass of moving humanity fills the floor. Presently, all are sorted out and put where they belong, and the bell rings again for the second play.

Then head table gets to ten points, "ding-a-ling" goes the bell and again all move-a complete mixup! Once more the players are straightened out and the game goes on!

As the evening advances, tension lessens, and tongues loosen, and it sounds like bedlam, with everybody talking at once!

Presently you hear someone announce "last game," and somebody else says "put your name on your score card." Then the score cards are collected and the tension again clamps down on the players, all eager to win the prize.

Quite often it is not till supper is nearly over that the winners are declared and the prizes distributed.

And the one with the lowest score, gets the booby prize-a bottle of catsup (entchup!).

Last Sunday afternoon, Edward ly from verse 24 to the end. Mr.

Vincent always has something unusual and something particu-

a meeting that evening in

Local Hockey Squad Takes 6-1 Trimming

Local Offensive Displays More Power But Less Finished Play

GROSSKURTH GETS GOAL

Hockey fans who returned to Aurora after witnessing the junior squad's 6-1 defeat in the S. P. A. series in Toronto on Monday night, had a hard time explaining the score. Runnymede Collegiate, the victors, showed little in the way of hockey that the Aurorans could not display in greater quantities.

The teams battled on even terms for the first period, with Grivel, of Runnymede, earning the one-goal advantage on an assist by Monckton.

Runnymede netted another after six minutes of ragged play in the second session, when the Aurora defense gave Frank Carr little protection. After that, believe it or not, it was Aurora's game—in everything but goals.

The locals swarmed across Runnymede's blue line and kept the play largely in their opponents' territory throughout the rest of the second and most of the third periods. On numerous occasions Runnymede was forced to shoot the puck down the ice to relieve the pressure.

Gould of Runnymede broke away half way through the final session and passed to Grivel, who put one in the far corner of the net to beat Joe Tunney, who had taken Carr's place in the goal-mouth, and made the score 3-0. With less than ten minutes to go, it still seemed that the Aurorans might pull a victory out of the hat. Runnymede managed to slip away from the pile-up in front of their own goal, however, to get three extra counters, while Aurora's only chance to cheer came when Grosskurth, Aurora defenseman, scored a clean goal for the home squad.

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN CHRISTMAS CONCERT

Teachers of the Presbyterian Sunday-school met on Monday night to arrange for their annual Christmas concert. The date set for the entertainment was Dec. 15.

Coach Rowntree has been faced with the problem of selecting a team from a list of more than 40 players, and time which ordinarily would have gone for team practice had to be spent in the business of weeding out the less-developed puckchasers.

Another session or so to straighten out the team-work round the nets, will give Aurora a powerful, goal-getting squad.

While selection of the O.H.A. team has still to be made, a sporter's guess (which is usually poor) is that Frank Carr and Joe Tunney will share the work in goal. Grosskurth, Allan Boake, C. James and Gordon Bone look good for defense jobs.

Bill Wilson, Hugh Mair and Allan Wrightman would make a smart forward string, as would Roy Collings, Polliott, and Bill McComb. Jack Atkinson, Bud Jones, Aubrey Barker and Buster Carter are close on their heels, however, and may be on the ice more and more as the season advances.

Junior Band Will Go To City To Show Them How

Addition of Reed Section For Young Musicians Is Considered

The addition of a reed section to the Junior Band is being considered, The Era learned on Monday. This would round out the town's new musical unit with the popular saxophones and clarinets and open the privileges of the band to another dozen or so boys, it was stated.

Parents met at Mechanic's Hall on Wednesday of this week to discuss the matter with a representative of a Toronto instrument firm.

An invitation received from two Toronto schools would intimate that Aurora is leading the way in youthful musical organizations. The Junior Band will journey to Toronto on Friday to play at Bloor St. and Deer Park colleges to demonstrate what can happen when boys, instruments and a good leader get together.

ATTEND BANQUET

Members of the Aurora town council went to Toronto on Tuesday to attend the warden's banquet for municipal officials.

The following boys make up the present membership of the band—cornets: G. Doolittle, Stuart De La Haye, M. Cuthbertson, Bill Attridge, Anson Gilbert, Bill Ransom, H. Pattenden, John McGhee, Gordon Lee, Bill Williams, M. Pugsley, Harold Millgate.

Trombones: Jim McGhee, Chas. Williams, Harry Sprague, Chas. Griffith. Euphonium, Bill Thompson. Bass drum, Chas. Fray. Snare drum, Jim Ransom. Alto Horns: Harold Oliver, Jim Willis, Raymond Cook, Walter Bunn, Harold Foot; baritone: Bruce Helise, Bill Knowles; basses: Eric Bilbrough, Francis Anderson, Harry Jones.

"Don't Advertise Self, Give Secretly," Congregation Told

Not Nice To Be On Receiving End, United Church Minister States

What might be described as a sermon on the art of giving was addressed by Rev. Dr. E. J. Thompson to his United Church congregation on Sunday morning. "It is not a nice thing to be on the receiving end," the minister stated. "We sometimes insult the people to whom we give. When you give your gifts, give them secretly. Have some concern for the feelings of others. I don't refer to giving inside the family circle. I am talking of gifts to the needy, outside the family.

"Give by all means, but in such a way that you do not hurt people. Do not give to advertise yourself. When you are riding on the crest of a wave, remember those in the hollows. Your turn will come before life's journey is over.

"Many go astray because of money blindness," Dr. Thompson warned. "It is a disease to fight against. It will surely cause misery to yourself and to others."

ABOUT TOWN

HITCH-HIKER HITS BACK

Every two or three years we get a letter from a reader of this column. Last week our hitch-hiking friend took exception to our efforts to be smart at his expense, and wrote us as follows: "After voicing appreciation of your fulfilling your promise to say something about hitch-hiking, could we answer the base aspersions as to our character? Or is Ontario also working on the padlock theory?"

"Your description 'generation of hitch-hikers' is neat. But if we examine things a little more closely, is it not because dad or big brother is taking care of everything, that this deplorable situation has come to pass?"

"Everything has been passed over way so long that we are used to it now that the cure is worse than the medicine, who shall we blame? But there—newspapermen are only looking for scoops, not humdrum stuff.

"Ah me, we wish we were witty like some and so cast a parthian shaft at the 'oracle of Aurora' . . . and so to bed."

And In Reply Bliting our lips, we'll let the whole thing slide without comment . . . besides, we're not sure about that word 'parthian,' though we have a feeling it should be capitalized.

Oh yes, and another thing . . . that mention of 'scoops' and 'humdrum stuff' brings out the Irish in us. Actually, we're kept so busy getting all the humdrum things into The Era that we have neither time nor energy to achieve a scoop . . . the exclusive sort of story that is supposed to sell great quantities of papers. Sixty-Six Is The Number

We wish you and the rest of the folks would phone 66 more often to tell us about the "humdrum" happenings. It's the little items that build up the news value of a paper. If you'll give us a hand in this respect, we'll barge right out and grab you a couple of scoops every issue. Honest.

A Friend's In Need We're glad we're not the only publication to have trouble. Just the other day we heard that that enterprising journal, The School Herald, of Aurora—public school, grade seven, to be exact—has run into difficulty in its production department.

They have a small duplicating machine, which though all right in its way, doesn't weigh much and is quite unable to cope with the high-speed requirements of a modern school magazine.

The publishers have decided to purchase new equipment and to sell the present machine. It's been used only three times, we're told, and they'll sell it for about the price of a one-year subscription to The Era. So let us know if you are interested in either proposition.

How To Drown A recently published article on sailing states: "Lug foresails on schooners are now banned, the basic reason being that they over-lapped and were so hard to trip that they sometimes capsized the vessel and drowned all hands."

As former commodore of the former Newmarket yacht club, we beg to laugh heartily. Things have come to a pretty pass when a little matter of capsizing a schooner and drowning all hands is permitted to alter racing practice.

No Word From Davy Jones Who, we ask, is at the bottom of this banning of the lug foresail? We have heard no complaint from the hands that were sometimes drowned, and if they aren't worrying, why should we?

Personally, we intend to carry a lug foresail if we want to. We'll capsize the schooner if we feel like it. And if we're in the mood, we'll drown. So there.

If Winter Comes A friend of ours—a lady, of all things—has had trouble with her personal budget, and has added stature to our standing as a financial wizard by asking our advice. It seems she has been buying insurance and a new coat at the same time and can no longer endure the double torture.

Her problem was which to give up—the coat or the insurance. We of course pointed out that while the insurance coverage was an excellent thing, that the coat would offer warmer coverage during the winter months. We thought we were quite clever.

PUCKSTER PROWL PROVES POPULAR

Despite the fact that the hockey club's first game of the season fell on the same date as their second dance, there was no lack of support at Middlebrook's hall on Monday night. Andrew Closs, club executive, successfully held the gate at the hall and acted as host while the team did their stuff in Toronto.

Both "square" and "round" dancing were enjoyed by the throng, and at intermission tickets were drawn to decide who should share in the prizes provided by 15 Aurora merchants.

The following held the lucky tickets: Mrs. Len Holman, H. Fry, Mrs. J. Closs, Sr., H. Cook, Mrs. S. L. Lussie, L. Williams, B. Helsey and M. McDowell, all of Aurora; Florence Bogart, Katie Petrie, Mary Hartford, George Ruddock, Farmer Wesley and Leo Cull, of Newmarket, and W. J. Cosgrove of Bond Lake.

Dr. Glen drew The Era's attention to the union service of witness to be held in the United church on Sunday evening. The address will be given by Brigadier Dalziel of the Salvation Army and ministers of the Anglican, Presbyterian, Baptist and United churches will share in the service.

"The churches get along well together here," Dr. Glen stated. "There is good fellowship between them. The united service illustrates and encourages that feeling."

Jury Absolves Driver In Yonge St. Fatality

Jury Suggests Rate-Payers Seek Transportation For Children

PETITION SCHOOL BOARD

Coroner Dr. C. J. Devins called an inquest on Monday evening to inquire into the death of Glen Lawson, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lawson, who died as a result of an accident on Yonge St. highway while returning home from school on Oct. 29.

The boy, it was stated, had been walking north on Yonge St., facing the traffic, and suddenly darted into the path of a truck driven by A. Robillard of Penetang.

The jury returned the following verdict: "That Glen Lawson was killed on Oct. 29, shortly after 4 p.m. on Yonge St., opposite station C.F.R.B., through colliding with a truck driven by Armand Robillard of Penetang."

"From the evidence submitted the fatality was purely an unfortunate accident and we attach no blame to the driver of the truck."

Elwood Brown carefully explained "the worst predicament I was ever in." The happily-married

Paper Faces Disaster Threat Improper Press-Washing Blamed

Staff Of New Publication Shares Troubles Of Older Brothers

The editorial offices of the School Herald, local public school magazine, were thrown into a turmoil on Friday when press-room difficulties threatened to halt publication of its fourth issue.

Editor John Crysedale and staff, rumored to have upwards of $250 invested in the plant, aged visibly while the production department struggled for a final proof. It was not, in fact, until someone read the directions again that the problem was solved.

The difficulty turned out to be one which, it is stated, is met with by every press-room from time to time: the press needed to be washed. Shortly after this matter had been adjusted everything was running smoothly and the first of the 40 copies was on its way to the public.

The School Herald, in its eight two-column pages, represents the literary efforts of a number of grade seven students in Aurora public school. Editor Crysedale is assisted by Douglas Clarke, sports editor, Harold Corbett, assistant sports editor; Jean Patterson, society editor; and by Bill Hubeck and Kenyon Davies.

Ivan Anderson heads the art department. Organization of the advertising and circulation departments is still under consideration, as is the staffing of the business department. The journal appears to be the result of a well-directed effort. It is well written and pleasing in format.

EVERSLEY UNITED FARMERS ATTEND BANQUET

The road men are anticipating lots of icy roads this winter and have made large provision for meeting that condition. "Safety first," they say. So, as this corner is usually ornamented with neat heaps of broken stone and red rolls of snow fence, there is also that invariable heap of sand.

They had nicely cleaned away that sand, when they began again, mixing lots of salt with it. The pile grew so long, from near the corner down along the writer's orchard fence, till stopped by a telephone pole, the writer became alarmed and asked that they leave a passage for exit or egress. They agreed that if drinks were put up, sweet cider, they would halt at that telephone pole. So there it is, a neat range of sand mountains glistening white, with its snow-clad, no, ice-clad surface, ready to be used over slippery places when needed. Formerly calcium chloride was used but it was too expensive and also so strong it burnt the leather of gloves and boots of the men using it. Also one maple tree and the side next to it of another died, it has been suggested from that same calcium chloride. It was none too good for the auto tires also.

The United Farmers held their annual banquet in Wells and MacDonald hall on Tuesday night. About 100 persons enjoyed the good things to eat. At the head table sat Leonard Harman and Mrs. Harman, Mr. Buchanan and Harry MacDougall, the guest speakers; Harry Rumble and around the corner three past presidents, now honorary presidents, Wm. Barker, J. Riddell and Clifford Pollett. The business part of the program was soon over, as all arrangements had been made for a quick procedure.

The officers elected were all from the Young Farmers: president, Leonard Harman, secretary, Bill Barker; executive, Len Glass, Norman Payne, Wm. Hoyle and Wilbert Jennings.

Over $3,000 worth of business had been done, and better than that is hoped for this year.

Mr. Barker led in a singsong till the entertainers arrived. These latter proved to be three violinists, or rather two, and one who chattered on a guitar, and a tap dancer. The violinists were masters of their art. The dancer appeared on the platform, in plug hat and lone crooked cane and did some stunts in tap dancing and somersaulting. Later dressed differently, she showed herself a charming young acrobat. Harry Rumble gave probably the best illustration of co-operative work in his oration on looking backward 15 years. It was patterned after Bellamy's book "Looking Backward," and was a most interesting picture of conditions 30 years hence should real co-operative conditions be carried out. Mr. MacDougall gave a very interesting address referring to study groups and their advantages for the young farmers.

Wednesday afternoon, Eversley W.M.S. met for their thank-offering meeting at the home of Mrs. A. B. Wells. Mrs. Charles Steinmetz, wife of the pastor of the Hungarian church in Toronto, was guest speaker and charmed her audience with her own charming personality and her vivid portrayal of her country's people. The allocation was met by the W.M.S. and a year of faithful service is near its close.

Amateur night at King, under the sponsorship of All Saints' church, was a huge success. Over 500 people overflowed the hall. Forty-five entries were received and forty of these were given. There was such a variety of program and it provided heaps of fun. It certainly was a most popular event along entertainment lines. Little Nancy Ball of Eversley sang "At the Codfish Ball," among the class of six-year-olds. Nancy charmed her audience and Betty Hall gave one of her popular readings.

At Eversley Young People's on Friday night at Mrs. Gellatly's, it was music night, with Mrs. Jas. Walla, convener. Some new songs were introduced. The girls told in community singing, playing as a kazoo band. A singing contest with such songs as "Have you ever seen a horse-fly, a horse-fly, etc." proved very merry.

The Common Round

By Isabel Inglis Colville

"What's In A Day?"

I had intended to go a-sailing with the readers of this column at this particular time, but a day at the Women's Institute convention convinced me that we could go to sea any day, but as far as I was concerned, I could only go one day a year to the convention.

Perhaps you may have gathered from things I have left fall about myself, that I am on occasions—only very occasionally—a little bit absent-minded. Well, it came to the fore well defined on Thursday of last week.

You see, I was to be ready at eight o'clock that morning to enjoy, with two other women, the hospitality of our reeve's car to the city.

Thinking all the time that I was doing wonders in the way of conserving time, I got everything in readiness to leave for mother's convenience, served breakfast to my better half, mother, and seven and a quarter cats, then sat placidly down to enjoy my own maternal repast. "Hurry! hurry! hurry!" suggested mother.

"Oh, no, I've lots of time," said I—but suddenly I looked at the clock—twenty to eight! I'd lost half an hour somewhere!

Panting and puffing, I rushed hither and yon, nor ever drew a full breath till we were on our way.

Arrived at the Royal York, there were women, women everywhere, but not one we knew.

However, that didn't matter and we soon reached the convention room, where women and more women, congregated. We arrived just in time to hear Dr. McMurphy's address. She spoke of the necessity for a nation-wide campaign against cancer—third in the death-dealing diseases of Canada: she told of the greater number of women victims, this being consequent upon their being the mothers of the race. She stressed the fact that the Women's Institutes can be the keystone in the fight which the medical association is waging to try and control the dread disease.

"There is always a warning," said she, "and if this warning is heeded in time, cancer can be cured."

Mrs. Walker's address followed, telling of the memorable events in Institute life, and speaking much of the founder of the Institute.

She stressed the fact that Institutes can enable their members to be better homemakers and as a nation cannot rise above the level of its homes—this is of paramount importance.

She spoke also of Laura Rose Stephens who has lectured on Institute work for thirty-five years; who suggested the Institute motto, and designed the Institute pin.

There is magic in the word home, and Institute members must be home lovers as well as home makers.

The president of the Stony Creek Institute then was called on, and spoke a few words of the wonderful heritage which is theirs. Mrs. Walker, at this point, was presented with a gorgeous bouquet of roses.

The provincial presidents were now called on, the first being Mrs. McGregor of British Columbia. She brought greetings from the Pacific; told of B.C.'s increase in Institute membership; their study of rural communities to keep them rural in the best sense.

During the depression the Institute started two cottage craft centres as an incentive to remunerative work for women, with Victoria as a distributing centre. Also, if it had not been for the Institutes, health, during the lean years would have suffered sadly.

Mrs. Stuart of Alberta followed. She told us at once that she was not allowed to answer political questions, which freed her from reporters.

She spoke of the Institute as Ontario's gift to Alberta; told of Institute work in the far spaces where there were few white women—of their hospitalization work; their sending of shoes to Saskatchewan. She said Alberta Institutes had to run on their own steam as they are not connected with the department of agriculture, but they managed, and their work varied with their needs.

Mrs. Meer of Saskatchewan was next. She said that hard times had not discouraged her people—just gave added determination to build up the Institute. Their Institutes sponsored playgrounds and recreation centres, health services for children, and clinics of all kinds, and like B.C. they aimed at making their province a place of beauty spots.

For their literary work they had assistance from the university and she spoke of the wonderful response to her province's need from Ontario.

Mrs. Rose of Manitoba said that they engaged in all the usual Institute work of helping the needy with clothing, layettes, and comforts of all kinds. They gave toward the cancer fund, and encouraged health service for children; maintained rest rooms; encouraged music and the drama and folk dancing, and supported handicraft efforts—only stressing that they must be of a high order to ensure success.

She also spoke of the Institute as being the channel for home culture and parent education.

Mrs. P. J. McDowell spoke for Ontario. She said we were all pursuing the same work. Ontario has 1,378 branches, with a membership of 40,000. Home economics, short courses, music, drama and work for girls, are all sponsored by our Institutes, short courses and leadership groups being especially helpful.

Mrs. Patch brought greetings from Quebec, where the Institute membership is less than two thirds the size of the next smallest one. This was due to the French women having an organization of their own.

They sponsored tonsil and adenoid clinics, fought diphtheria, provided play equipment and hot lunches in schools. Teachers and parents also worked together; and above all, their Institutes were trying to cultivate the neighborly spirit in all their members.

Mrs. H. Dunn brought New Brunswick's greetings. They felt they were the pioneers of Canada, mostly of U.E. Loyalist stock.

Considering that the whole centre of N.B. is primeval forest, they feel their 183 branches and 3,500 members are pretty fair. Their greatest works are relief and legislation—they fought for married women's property right—and got them.

Their quilts, if laid side by side would reach from St. John to Fredericton.

Each year they give $100 to some girl, to further her education. The Institute is also trying to assist in the building of a home for the feeble-minded, and have already made some progress along that line.

Mrs. Freeman Laing spoke for Nova Scotia. She said they specialized on work of standing committees, and at their district rallies, each branch was responsible for a certain part of the program.

They cultivated music and had cultivated a strong and lusty chorus. Their handicraft work was bringing in much needed money—French dolls, cloth toys, weaving, were all part of their work. They also supported an Institute school for officers.

Lastly, Mrs. McLaren brought greetings from the smallest province, Prince Edward Island. They sponsor home nursing, girl's clothing clubs, handicraft work, and all towards better homemaking.

They work intensively for better accommodation for T. B. patients; as at present the facilities for their treatment are sadly inadequate.

By this time every one was ready for luncheon and we all had lots to think about.

The afternoon opened with a singsong, after which Lady Tweedsmuir spoke.

She said Lord Tweedsmuir might almost be classed as an Institute martyr, for when he came home from London, she was away lecturing for the Institute and not only that, her cook was an enthusiastic Institute too, and often His Excellency suffered in consequence.

She said also that British Institutes would welcome more Canadian Institute news and also articles for their Institute papers. Correspondence with their members was also urged. Institutes must breed love and good will, not be hot beds of envy and jealousy, and she begged members to be considerate of their presidents and secretaries, for they usually get "more kicks than ha'pence."

Keep up high standards in educational work, and give to the best advantage, she urged. Institutes have taken away an inferiority complex from rural women, and have proved a great uniting factor among women, she said. Institute work has taught them to make the best of things in the worst of times.

Following her address, Lady Tweedsmuir was presented with an exquisite miniature of herself and a bouquet of roses.

Everyone felt that Lady Tweedsmuir's speech was an incentive to renewed effort on the part of our far-flung organization, and we feel proud that the first lady of Canada is also the first lady of our Institute.

Speaker (desirous of raising money): "All who will give $10 stand up."

To musician: "Play 'God Save the King.'"

A good story concerns Herr Remarque, the author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," and a pretty American girl to whom he was introduced in Berlin.

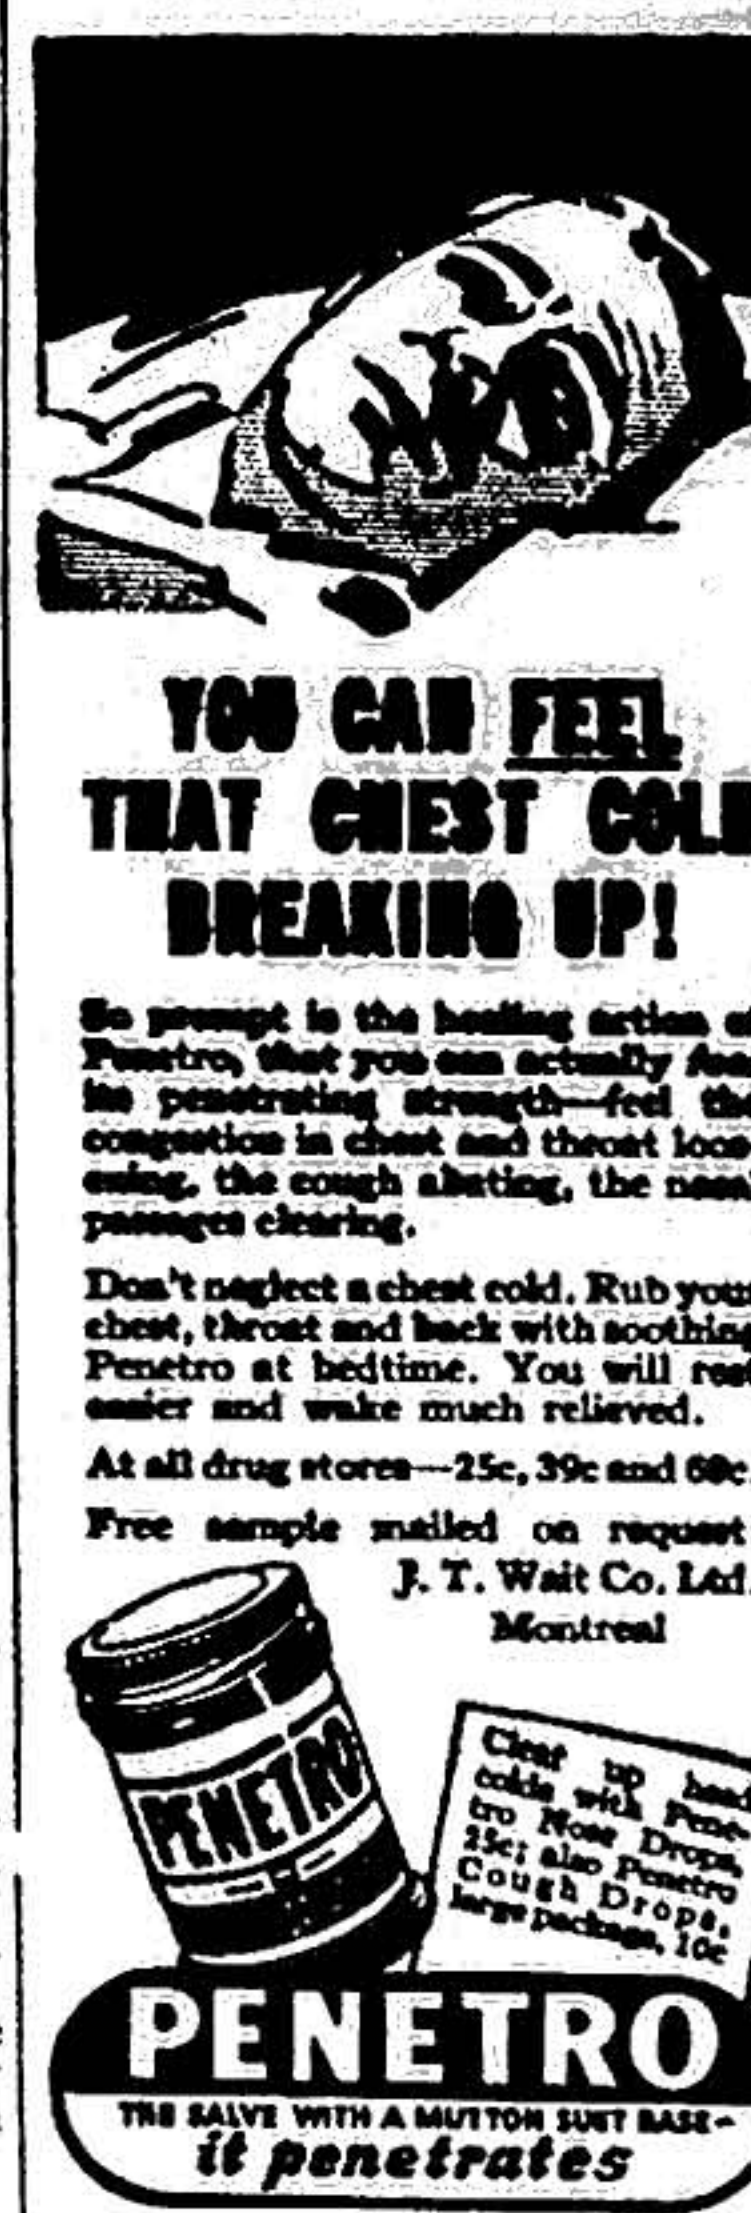

The American, speaking in German, asked Remarque why he had never visited the United States. His answer was that he knew only a few sentences in English.

"What are the sentences?" inquired the girl.

Whereupon Remarque, speaking slowly in somewhat guttural English, said: "How do you do? I love you. Forgive me. Forget me. Ham and eggs, please."

"Sakes alive!" ejaculated the girl. "Why, with that vocabulary you could tour my country from Maine to California."

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—they wake and cough sleep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy for kidney trouble.
